

MAUD POWELL IS NOT ONLY A GREAT ARTIST ON THE VIOLIN, BUT SHE IS ARDENT IN HER WORK FOR THE VOTE FOR THOSE OF HER SEX

By DOROTHY R. JOHNSON

MAUD POWELL, the little American girl to show the world that a woman could "fiddle as well as a man."

"Years passed. The battle of life and the persistent struggle toward an even higher artistic goal consumed my energy. Curious as it may seem, a public life was foreign to my nature. It seemed to take all my courage to pursue my own little path toward recognition, leaving no surplus vitality to be devoted to the big general cause of woman's rights."

"But I was doing my share toward advancing the cause by developing to the utmost the talents that nature had given me. I believed that sheer force of example would raise standards and fire enthusiasm in other girls, and that on the heels of equipment and efficiency, success would follow."

"I knew that equal suffrage was right, but that other women had greater gifts of speech and of disposition to work actively in the cause than I, I felt sure."

"When, more recently, the English suffragettes introduced militant methods, I was repelled and ashamed. What I abhorred was their lack of sportsmanship. They didn't 'play fair.'"

"Witness the famous house of commons incident in which they did not keep their word."

"Then came the war. Women of England, including the hysterical suffragettes, faced the situation squarely and bravely. They gave up their menfolk, and turned heroically to the tasks that hitherto had been performed chiefly by masculine hands."

"I was by an altogether different sequence of ideals that Madame Maud Powell came to be one of the world's great spokeswomen for freedom in art and freedom in political life."

"Madame Powell's progress in art and freedom in political life. Madame Powell's progress in art and freedom in political life."

"This was to be her contribution to the progress of womanhood as well as her education, to her personal art and science. Madame Powell was born into the ideal of the pioneer suffrage movement."

"Hailed in an atmosphere charged with the then radical spirit of woman suffrage, it is perhaps surprising that I did not come sooner to a realization of the importance of the question."

"I grew older my studies absorbed my time and strength. Yet, through my childhood years there persisted an unconscious of thought that urged me ever onward—to try to prove that a woman could do her work as thoroughly as a man."

"Indeed, throughout long years I fought my battles against prejudice, even as Camilla Green—remembered to her memory—fought the battle before me. In my early days the name of Mrs. Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony were household words."

"Susan B. who took a real interest in my future career, even giving me my first system, a gold sovereign toward buying a Cremona violin. Both of them were household words."

Food obtainable under excellent surroundings at reasonable rates. The cafeteria has a door which opens directly onto Franklin street—an exceptionally pleasant for the men—and will accommodate 150 persons at a time. It is under the management of Mrs. Maude Crosby. The tea room is to have service, with waitresses later, and may be separated from the cafeteria with French doors. There may be a slightly different menu served in the tea room, with slightly different prices on account of the service, but this is to be decided definitely later.

Over 100 people ate luncheon at the cafeteria on Monday, the opening day, the women and girls being accompanied by many men, as the cafeteria is not restricted to women, and men do not need to be accompanied by women.

Luncheon is served from 11:30 to 2 o'clock, and supper from 5:30 to 7. The cafeteria itself is pleasantly situated and equipped, and the tea room, which is to be used for private parties as well as for regular meals, is charming in its plan and furnishing.
